Lake Erie landowners lawsuit

Major Guests

State Rep. Tim Grendell (R-Chesterland), David Scott from the Sierra Club

Points

Grendell claimed the state is robbing Lake Erie homeowners by moving their property lines from the low water mark to the high water mark, effectively changing their deeds and violating their property rights. But Scott said it's imperative for the health and vitality of the lake, which belongs to everyone, not just shoreline landowners. The Ohio Department of Natural Resources and the Audubon Society were invited to participate, but declined because of pending litigation filed by some shoreline homeowners against the state.

Points

The guests discussed a study out this year showing Ohio teens are reporting healthier habits than their counterparts in a study in 1999. Rates of kids who've tried alcohol, who use tobacco and who have sex are down. But the study shows the number of kids who are overweight has grown, and significant increases are reported in the numbers of youths who've been depressed or tried suicide.
